Companies Act, 1956. A system has been evolved whereby the audit of these organisations is conducted both by internal and external auditors. Reserve Bank of India also conducts periodical inspection of the public sector banks. For selecting statutory auditors of the public sector banks/financial institutions, a Committee which has a representative of the C & AG has been set up. The Committee selects firms of auditors in conducting bank audit. The existing system of audit and inspection in public sector banks and financial institutions is working smoothly. Keeping in view these facts, as also the commercial nature of operations of these institutions, and the need for a proper mix of autonomy and accountability in public sector banks/ financial institutions, Government and RBI do not consider it necessary to entrust audit of these organisations to the Comptroller and Auditor General of India.
